INTRODUCTION

This bibliography has developed from my personal interest and charged responsibility to develop the Ethnic Studies Collection in the library of California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo.

Through a detailed search of the literature and multiple discussions with students on the campus of the university, this brief introduction to the wealth of material was compiled about the economic, political, and social life of the Filipino-American.

Cited works include books, government documents, journal articles, theses, and dissertations all intended to highlight significant scholarship and research on this often-overlooked minority group. The citations are arranged by subject, and are restricted only by language (English), geography (written about Filipino-Americans but published worldwide), and imprint date (1900-1976).
